1. With [REDACTED] of O/CI I visited the White House and made a thorough survey of conditions surrounding the establishment there by the Agency of a briefing or situation room. There are two possibilities: (1) the present bowling alley which would require substantial construction to make it secure as well as suitable, but which is almost directly under the President's Office, and (2) the bomb shelter briefing room which, although already built and equipped, is some 300 feet away from the President's Office.
